INTRODUCTION

The Club

Raffles originally opened its doors in 1967, the venue stands out as legendary in London's nightlife Hall of Fame as one of the finest nightclubs in the city. Launched in the swinging sixties, Raffles attracted the city's glitterati and became the place for London's movers and shakers. An era of music, Raffles captured the ethos perfectly and was the only location to disco until dawn, being the only club in London to have a 5am license.

If the walls could talk then Raffles would spill the secrets of the biggest celebrities from every decade since the sixties. The club witnessed The Rolling Stones, Vivienne Westwood, Princess Margaret and the best of British bohemianism all letting loose, revelling in Raffles' irreverent and subversive take on a private member's club.
